Hispalcerámica, la historia de nuestros azulejos en relieve sevillanos

La palabra azulejo viene del árabe "Az-zulay", que significa "el ladrillito", y el arte de su fabricación se conoce de muy antiguo. En efecto, los asirios y los persas ya trabajaban este producto en el año 521 a.c. De ellos los tomaron los árabes, que a su vez los introdujeron en España. Si recordamos que los árabes entraron en España en el año 711, podremos fácilmente comprender que a lo largo de los siglos se fuera perfeccionando este arte, fundiendo lo oriental con lo típicamente hispano hasta producir la extraordinaria diversidad y belleza de los azulejos españoles, y en especial de los modelos llamados "sevillanos".

En HISPALCERÁMICA la calidad artesanal no está reñida con la técnica moderna, ya que hemos conseguido aunar lo más recientes avances con la tradición artesana que cuida con mimo todos los detalles en la fabricación de cada pieza. Rigurosos controles de calidad aseguran un acabado perfecto. El proceso empieza en las canteras de materia prima y de ahí pasa al molino. Se fabrican entonces diferentes bizcochados que, una vez seleccionados, se exponen a más de 1.000 grados centígrados. Luego llega la hora del taller de pintura, y aquí es donde expertas manos artesanas ponen fantasía y belleza en el pintado.

El sello que distingue a los azulejos de HISPALCERÁMICA es la elegancia en el color y diseño. Esto hace que sean adaptables a cualquier superficie, a estilos clásicos y modernos, a espacios amplios o reducidos, y a interiores y exteriores. Y por supuesto a sus lugares más tradicionales: la cocina y el baño.

Hispalcerámica, the history of our handmade relief tiles from Seville

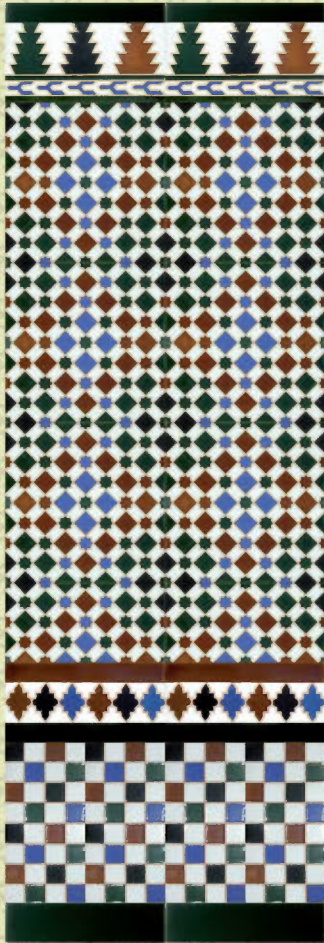

The word tile comes from the arabic "Az-zulay", which means "small brick", and the art of its manufacture has been known for a long time. Indeed, the Assyrians and Persians were already working this product by the year 521 b.c. The Arabs learned the technique from them and brought it to Spain. If we take into account that the Arabs arrived at Spain in the year 711 a.c., we will easily understand that, all along the centuries, this art steadily improved, melting the oriental with the typically hispanic and resulting in the extraordinary diversity and beauty of the spanish tiles, and specially those known as "sevillian".

In HISPALCERÁMICA quality is not at odds with modern technology, for this company has harmonized the most recent improvements with the artisan's tradition of taking the most of care in every detail of the manufacturing of each tile. Strict quality controls ensure a faultless finished product. The process begins at the quarries where the clay is extracted, and from there goes to the mill. Different bakes are then made which, once selected, are exposed to more than 1,000 °C in the first oven. Then comes the time for the painting shop, and it is here that expert artisan hands will give the piece fantasy and beauty.

The mark that distinguishes HISPALCERÁMICA's tiles is their elegance of colours and patterns. This makes them suitable for any surface, for classic and modern styles, for large or small spaces and for both indoors and outdoors. And of course for more traditional places such as kitchens and bathrooms.
